

I am concerned that the FCC is now considering making changes to the way FM radio is heard in my community. If Low Power FM (LPFM) is expanded to take priority over current FM translator services, we could lose wonderful stations that are vital to our lives. For example, K-LOVE (89.7) not only keeps me inspired but keeps me connected to a broader Christian community that I have no other way to access with such ease and consistency. This is only one of two Christian stations that I have available to me and they could both be displaced under these new considerations. I hope that the FCC will protect the rights of the "little guy" to maintain broadcasting options without having to compete with heavy hitting corporations who are already gobbling up the media.

Thank you for your time!
